

An Aural Oasis Thrives in Midwest

Chris Suttle's In The Red Recording Studio offers a great space and a competent engineer for tracking and mixing

Dayton, Ohio

September 24, 2010

Music makers have a great new place to lay their tracks down in the heart of the Midwest. In the Red Recording Studio calls Dayton, Ohio home. In the Red Recording is a stylish multi room space great for recording.

Chris Suttle is the engineer and oversees the day to day operations. Chris has worked with well known bands such as Shinedown and Tantric and helped established acts such as The Kentucky Head Hunters, Foghat, and Flock of Seagulls.

Chris's control room utilizes the Toft Audio Designs ATB32 to capture and mix a very diverse slew of new bands such as Ragdoll, Al Holbrook, Red Hot Rebellion and Alec Delphich Trio. "The Toft console has taken my recordings to another level. It's ease of use, flexibility, and most important -- SOUND -- make my job fun, creative, and efficient. The mic pre-amps sound really great and the eq's rock my socks. I love it, and my clients think it looks cool too!"
